BODY OF WHITE
CAPTAIN TRUNK

Grewsome Discovery In Rear Rooming Hou

Identified As Grand
daughter of Gen. Sigel

New York Police Working On Mystery.

LETTERS FROM A CHINAMAN.

New York, June 18.—Elizabeth Sigel, daughter of Paul Sigel, of this city, and granddaughter of the illustrious Franz Sigel, the German warrior, who enlisted his services with the Union army during the Civil War, is, according to all indications to-night, the victim of one of the most morbid murders in the history of New York.

If she is not the victim, the police are confronted with a remarkable series of coincidental facts. Taken from a trunk in the room of a Chinaman above a chop suey restaurant in the Tenderloin, the body, in a state of decomposition which makes identification difficult, lies in the morgue, while detectives are collecting the threads of a tangled story involving the girl and her associations with Chinese.

An envelope addressed to the girl found in the room where the body lay, a lock bearing her initials, her disappearance on June 10, and a note found in the room signed "Elsie," all seem to indicate that Franz Sigel's granddaughter was murdered.

Body Stripped and Bound.

The body was partially stripped of its clothing, tied with ropes, wrapped in a faded blue blanket and crammed in a dilapidated old trunk, where it lay for a week at least before the odor crept through the building, arousing the suspicions of the proprietor of the chop suey restaurant below who summoned the police and instituted an investigation.

Mr. Sigel had not identified the body at a late hour to-night, nor had Mrs. Sigel, although the mother, when told that her daughter had evidently been murdered by a Chinaman, became hysterical. The father in the meantime, was in conference with the police.

Sun Leong Disappears.

Sun Leong, proprietor of the restaurant, who also conducted the rooming-house above, disappeared shortly after the discovery of the murder, adding further to the mystery. The case has many unusual features, notable among which is the fact that a Chinaman has been known to call at the Sigel home, presumably with the sanction of the parents.

Elizabeth, or Elsie, was 20 years old, and was greatly interested in work among Chinese. It is understood she became acquainted with one Chinaman who may be seen in the light of the case, several years ago, when he conducted a crack game at an amusement park at Fort Totten, located in the Bronx, near the city hall, and was not far away from that resort. Neighbors said to-night the calls of the Chinaman to the house ceased more than a year ago.

Father Does Not Identify Body.

After having been shown the lock and parts of the girl's clothing, Mr. Sigel refused to identify the body, but he did identify the lock as his daughter's. Arrangements were made to-day to have the body placed in a coffin and taken to the funeral home, but Mr. Sigel would not consent to this until he had seen the body.

Late to-night three Chinamen were arrested as material witnesses. They gave the names of Lee Kim, a resident of Sun Leong's restaurant; Gong Wing, manager of the restaurant; and Lee Ah, a cook, who lived in the rear of the restaurant.

The man most wanted, however, is the former occupant of the room where the body was found, a man named Lee Ah, speaking Celestial, who either knew Elsie Sigel, or knew some one that knew her. Judging from the letters this body found, it would seem to indicate that it was Lee Ah.

Recognizes Underclothing.

Shortly after midnight, Mrs. Florence M. Todd, one of the resident women of the Chinatown and Bowery settlement, was called to the morgue and after viewing the body, identified some of the underclothing as her daughter's.

Mrs. Paul Sigel at 1:30 o'clock this morning when shown the jewelry found in the room, made him a valuable witness, the fact that he was the last occupant of the room makes him a valuable witness at least.

The house in which the body was discovered is at 22 Eighth avenue, in the Tenderloin district. Sun Leong, the proprietor, brought about the revelation of the crime. He noted a peculiar odor and fearing it might be a case of murder, notified the police. They ascended to the top floor, entered a small room and found the body of a young woman, who was found crumpled and partly decomposed, with a rope wound tightly about her neck and also tied about the knees and arms.

Covered With Blood.

The body was covered with blood and the clothing was torn, indicating there had been a struggle. The man who had occupied the room evidently had left hastily for there had been no time to remove anything. He was evidently converted to Christianity, for there about the body were Bibles and prayer books containing writing in both English and Chinese, which gave the information that he was known in English as William H. Leon, and in Chinese as Leong Lo Lim. Scrawled on a card in fairly good English was an unsigned note which read: "I hope you do not get mad at me, because all the trouble came from me. Hope some day the heavens come to us both."

Examined the trunk which it was first wrapped in a blue blanket, although the body was found in a state of decomposition.

Drugging the trunk out into a hall, detectives began a more minute inspection. Decomposition had progressed so far, however, that except for the whiteness of the feet, it would have been difficult to ascertain whether it was the body of a white woman. Soon after Mr. Sigel had been notified it was removed to the morgue.

Turning their attention again to the room, the officers found a butcher cleaver which gave further color to the theory offered as borne out by the bloody corpse. The house where the trunk was found is a three-story structure used mainly as a chop suey restaurant. The upper floors are rented to Chinamen.

According to Mr. Sigel, his daughter disappeared from home June 10. Two days later the body was found in the trunk in Washington, saying she was safe and would be home the following Monday. The body was found in the trunk in Washington, saying she was safe and would be home the following Monday.

Letters Give Clue.

A number of letters which the police expect will throw light on the case were found in the room where the body was found. The letters were written in English, and were addressed to the missing Chinaman, who occupied the room, but unsigned, warned him to be careful of his life. A silver spangled bracelet, upon which were the initials "E. S. Sigel," was found in a drawer in the room.

A plain envelope addressed to Miss Elizabeth Sigel, of New York City, was also found in the room. BIG PURCHASE IS INVOLVED.

Cincinnati, June 18.—(Special.)—Differences between the Burley Tobacco Society of Kentucky and T. H. Kirk, leaf tobacco dealer, of Cincinnati, have been referred to arbitration by the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce. The arbitration is being held at the Hotel Hamilton, and the case is being heard by a panel of three arbitrators.

The tobacco was later sent to the Cincinnati Tobacco Warehouse Company for delivery. The warehouse company has agreed to deliver the tobacco to the Burley Tobacco Society, but the society has refused to accept it, claiming that the tobacco was not of the quality specified in the contract.

Evansville, Ind., June 18.—(Special.)—Arguments in the injunction case against the striking street car men here were heard by Judge C. A. DeBruin, of the Circuit Court, this morning. The judge has taken no action on the injunction, but has ordered a continuance of the case.

When Mr. Rick was excused, the disputed signature, enclosed in a glass case, was shown to the jury. The signature was that of the defendant, and the jury has not yet reached a verdict.

Glaser Denounces Forgery.

Richard Watson Glaser, who was a close friend of Mr. Cleveland, testified that the signature alleged to have been clipped from the article sold by Brandenburg was not that of Mr. Cleveland.

David N. Carvello, the handwriting expert, testified that the signature was a forgery, and that in his opinion Brandenburg had written it.

PROSECUTION RESTS ITS CASE

New York, June 18.—The authenticity of two words on a slip of paper in a glass case—Grove Cleveland—about which the trial of Broughton Brandenburg, the magazine writer, charged with grand larceny for the sale to the New York Times of an article purporting to have been written by Mr. Cleveland, has largely centered so far, lost something of its importance to-day when Brandenburg's counsel announced that his client would admit the signature was a forgery and not that of the former President of the United States.

This rather surprising turn in the case occurred after Richard Watson Glaser, the veteran magazine writer, had declared emphatically on the stand that the signature shown him was not that of his old friend, Grove Cleveland. At this point Brandenburg's lawyer interposed a statement.

Admits the Forgery.

"We do not contend," he said, "that the signature in the glass case is genuine. After Mr. Glaser's testimony to the land have said it was not, we would not possibly presume to say it was."

"That's news to me," said Assistant District Attorney Nott. "You've protested right along that it was genuine."

"We have not," replied the lawyer for the defense. "We are willing to stipulate that the signature in the glass case is not genuine."

As if approving the attitude taken by his counsel, Judge Cleveland said: "I am not going to say that the signature in the glass case is not genuine. I am not going to say that it is genuine. I am not going to say that it is not genuine. I am not going to say that it is genuine."

The purpose of the evidence was to prove that the alleged forged letter of Grove Cleveland, which Brandenburg sold to the New York Times last August, was typewritten more than a month after Mr. Cleveland's death.

The prosecution rested its case to-day, and the defense opened by calling Brandenburg to the stand for a short while. Testimony of two handwriting experts, both of whom pronounced the signature a forgery and added that the signature was not that of the former President of the United States.

CITY OWES THE SCHOOLS $32,000

Court of Appeals Upholds
36-Cent Tax Law.

Surety Co. Must Turn Over
Amount To Board.

Republicans Opposed Step
Which Gets the Money.

JUDGE MILLER SUSTAINED.

The Court of Appeals, sitting in Frankfort yesterday decided that Louisville must levy 36 cents on every $100 for school purposes. The opinion, written by Justice Edward C. O'Rear, upholds the constitutionality of the legislative enactment fixing 36 cents as the minimum levy for school use in cities of the first class. The opinion further declared that the levy should have been made in the 1909 taxes.

The opinion gives the City Attorney, the General Council and the Mayor a sound trouncing and proves a signal victory for that part of the School Board which had the interests of public education in Louisville at heart. Just how soon the School Board will be able to collect on the strength of the decision is a problem which depends upon whether further attempts will be made by the administration to keep the money from the schools.

Cut the Schools Short.

The General Council in its frantic efforts to make a "reform" showing for the Republican administration refused to consider the claims of the School Board for a 36-cent levy. Instead the Council cut the schools short with 34 cents. This made a difference in the school treasury of $22,000. Before the suit of the School Board was taken to the Court of Appeals the city was made to give a supersedeas bond insuring the payment of this amount.

The School Board, through its special attorney, Wallace McKay, will go about collecting this sum from the surety company as quickly as possible. The city has thirty days in which to file a petition for a rehearing. As the entire court was unanimous in the opinion, such action on the part of the city would be arbitrary and show an attitude to fight the schools and public education. City Attorney Clayton B. Blakey said yesterday afternoon that he guessed the money would have to be paid, but could not tell what action would be taken by the city until he saw a copy of the ruling.

Money From Surety Company.

The School Board will get its $22,000 from the surety company. The surety company will have to look to the city for the $22,000. As there is no such fund available, the debt, in all probability, will have to be taken care of with a special levy when the next set of tax bills are made out.

All of the School Board members do not share in the glory of the battle won. A majority of the board, however, fought the fight tooth and nail, taking their orders from the city hall. It was only by the barest majority that it was decided shortly before the first of the year to appoint a committee from the School Board to call upon the finance committee of the Board of Aldermen, and press the claims for a 36-cent levy.

The School Board had first-hand information that the Republicans down in the city hall were going to ride over the legislative act and fix the levy at 34 cents.

Got Cold Deal At City Hall.

The reception the special committee got from the Board of Aldermen was a freezing one. The committee flatly refused the demands nor would it make any investigation to learn whether the claims of the School Board were justifiable. With their eyes glued on the campaign cry of a low tax rate, they continued to refuse to consider the claims of the School Board.

Finally Sued the City.

The joy at the city hall was short-lived. After a terrific struggle which at times seemed certain to terminate in defeat, the School Board yesterday won a victory. The Board has secured a decision from the Court of Appeals which upholds the 36-cent levy.

San Francisco, June 18.—The case against Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railroad, on trial for the alleged bribery of Ferdinand P. Nicholas, a member of the so-called Schmitz board, "hoodlums" of San Francisco, was continued to-day by the Court of Appeals, the move being made by the defense.

When Mr. Calhoun was called Mr. Henry, the defense attorney, made a stirring argument, claiming that the defendant was not a genuine one.

"I am going to show more than that," he said, "that the defendant is not a genuine one. I am going to show that the defendant is a genuine one."

Says Brandenburg Wrote It.

Mr. Calhoun then testified to having compared the Cleveland signature with Brandenburg's handwriting, especially the signature in the glass case, and declared that in his opinion the same hand wrote both.

I know the only way to disorganize the trusts, to make it not only unlawful, but unsafe, to organize these powerful companies in this country is to put stripes on the men who violate the law. Mr. Pettit stated that Mr. Robinson was mistaken in saying our present constitutional provision was copied from Ohio. He declared that it was copied from the constitution of Iowa. Senator Hughes Replies.

Mr. Hughes waited until after Mr. Bailey had finished before attempting to reply to his challenge. Then he explained that it was perhaps "a little" "guiltless" and "innocent" of a Senator Proposition that had earlier in the day spoken with a desire to compose party differences. Mr. Hughes said he had helped frame the measure, and was proud of it.

The meeting was held at the courthouse, and was presided over by J. W. Pettit as follows: "It seems that you are rather tearing down what the commission is trying to build up."

Mr. Pettit: I beg your pardon, but they are trying to tear down what I helped to build up.

Mr. Ford—Mr. Pettit, how can you make this property stand up, exhibit itself and be a part of the Government?

The innovation yesterday of the free coupon system for women and children at Riverview Park proved a most popular one and the park was thronged throughout the day. The coupons, which were given out by the manager, attracted a big crowd of women and children to the park.

Endearing words twice marked the testimony. Calvin H. Kimball, an oil and paint dealer, who said he had known Mrs. Gould for eighteen years, testified that he went to a party at the home of the actress in August, 1936, with Mr. and Mrs. Farnum. He testified that he saw Mrs. Gould in the company of Farnum and that she was in a state of intoxication.

Old Virginia Recipes

Children's Gardens.

Happy is the child whose mother lets him garden and happier still if the mother be sufficiently progressive to buy him this charming book for aid and inspiration. Even grown people are glad to be helped to the "road to yesterday" and happiness might find the narrow gateway between its pretty covers.

All the information necessary for planning, planting and preserving a garden is given in plain, simple language, which is yet full of the unconscious poetry that always springs up where flowers of children grow. It is so simple, so direct, so divinely simple—a little bed of print planted in the middle of a page with a few words of instruction.

Some of the verses are instructions, of Northern Virginia suffered unnecessarily from insufficient food, insufficient transportation and lack of re-enforcements, and that Gen. Lee's army was "delivered up to the victor with contempt." He could not even secure the presence of his own veteran soldiers, but was "delivered up" by his subordinate, D. H. Hill.

Duelling in Virginia, from the standpoint of an experienced soldier, forms the subject of an early chapter. The Royal was connected with several duels and near-duels between prominent men of the South, and he gives a personal account of them and their causes. Incidental to these affairs d'honneur are some of the most interesting of his life in Richmond which make rather racy reading.

He has made a careful study of trusts and legal decisions concerning
